An off-road adventure and full-time job: Parenting

New story collection offers parenting lessons, family bonding, and more

COS COB, Conn. – Unlike cars, refrigerators, or Tivo, parenthood does not come with an instruction manual. As all moms and dads know, raising children is one of the most difficult jobs there is, but it is also one of the most rewarding. Be they newbies or veterans, most parents learn as they go, influenced by their beliefs, their own upbringing, or – perhaps most often – what they learn on the fly.

Chicken Soup for the Soul: On Being A Parent (Chicken Soup for the Soul Publishing, LLC, 978-1935096207, October 2008, $14.95) is a collection of stories celebrating parenthood, with accounts from mothers and fathers about the special moments with their kids. In addition, it contains stories from sons and daughters about their poignant (and often funny) relationship with their parents.

On Being A Parent is part of the new “101 Best Stories” series by the new publisher of Chicken Soup for the Soul® books. With refreshed cover designs and interior layouts, books in the “101 Best Stories” series offer the Editor’s favorite tales and poems submitted in the 15-year history of Chicken Soup for the Soul, reflecting the brand’s excitement and new energy on this memorable anniversary.

With topics ranging from “Homecoming” to “The Day I Became My Mother,” Chicken Soup for the Soul: On Being A Parent offers inspiration and advice to parents going through a difficult time, and provides reassurance to those who worry they are not living up to the Supermom or Superdad ideal. It also shares wisdom from parents who have “been there, done that,” with family-centered memories and reflections.

“Now as the parent of grown children, I see my mother was right,” writes On Being A Parent contributor Mayo Mathers about the stages of parenting. “The preschool years passed in the blink of an eye. But it wasn’t just those years that vanished in a moment—it was all of childhood! One moment we were reading Mother Goose together, the next, it was college catalogues.”

Inside Chicken Soup for the Soul: On Being A Parent, you’ll also read about:

- How Janet Nicholson and her husband spent the holidays with 6-year old Kate, from a nearby children’s home
- Why Tammy Lawson’s conversation about children with a stranger turned into a life-changing revelation
- How Diane Nicholson grieved and learned from the death of her newborn twin sons
- DeAnna Sanders’ heartening answer to her daughter’s question, “Is it fun being a mommy?”
